Larry Itliong was a Filipino American labor leader who dedicated his life to fighting for the rights of farmworkers. He was a key figure in the Delano grape strike of 1965, which resulted in significant improvements in wages and working conditions for farmworkers. Itliong's legacy continues to inspire activists and organizers today.

My Early Library

In his book, 'My Early Library,' Itliong shares his personal story and the experiences that shaped his commitment to social justice. He writes about his childhood in the Philippines, his immigration to the United States, and his early experiences as a farmworker. Itliong also discusses the role that books and education played in his life, and how they helped him to develop a critical understanding of the world around him.

My Early Library is a valuable resource for anyone interested in the history of the labor movement, Filipino American history, or social justice movements. It is also a powerful and inspiring story of one man's journey to make a difference in the world.
